

Sean McGuire on The Affordable Health Care Act (commonly referred to as ObamaCare) and how it applies to small business owners.

Having been a staff member of the United States Senate who started working on the law more than 5 years ago, Sean McGuire is uniquely qualified to speak in great detail and most any and all aspects of this new law. With the political rhetoric that was thrown around in the last campaign nobody knew if it was going to actually become law until the election was decided. Now that it is becoming the law of the land we all want to know how it is going to affect us and our employees. Mr. McGuire should be able to provide us with the answers to our questions. AFA and RSIG want to take the guess-work out of the equation for everyone that attends this convention by having one of the foremost experts on this new law and all of the rules, regulations and tax ramifications that go along with it.

Having worked so hard and for so long Sean is referred to as “the health care guru”. Unlike many who actually voted on the law, he has read the full text several times and he will give us a concise summary of the law and will quantify what it really means for each of us and our families, employees and their families.

Sean McGuire is a graduate of Marquette University, serves on the Board of Directors of the Omaha Press Club, hosts, “America’s Healthcare Challenge”, a weekly radio program preparing business owners and the public with the health reform and the changing government policies. As a staff member on the United States Senate Finance Committee he developed not only a clear understanding of the law but also the politics behind it. He now is in the private sector as the founder of E.D. Bellis, a consulting company that prepares business owners and executives with the information and know-how regarding compliance and potential penalties for non-compliance and taxes beginning in 2013.
